A BEQUEST TO AUSTRALIAN ROTARY HEALTH

We are all excited about new knowledge and cures from research, especially in mental illness research such as depression, schizophrenia, anxiety, Bipolar Disorder and Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder. You can look to the future funding of Australian Rotary Health by being a supporter and benefactor to fund this research into mental illness. Your decision today to support Mental Health Research will impact on your future generations and loved ones.

Making a Will is important at any stage of life

...ensuring that when you have passed, your estate will be handled the way you planned. Furthermore, it ensures that your assets will go to the people you choose, giving you peace of mind that your affairs are in order.

Including a Bequest in a Will is one of the easiest ways to continue supporting your community after death.

Become a Benefactor by making a Will to benefit research through Australian Rotary Health. Your solicitor, estate planner, financial planner or accountant will guide you independently in making such a decision.

There can surely be no better way to remember our loved ones than to give assistance to research which is tomorrow's treatment.

Leave a gift for Health Research

A Will is your important document that gives you the choice to provide for that which is close to you! There can be no better way to remember our loved ones than to help give assistance to research. This will enable funding of research projects and to continue the work of Australian Rotary Health.

Visit your legal or financial person to discuss the following codicil to gift something to research through Australian Rotary Health.

Get the right advice:

See your legal or financial person. They will assist you to ensure your requests and choices are documented in the Will. Australian Rotary Health relies on donations and bequests. More research will be the gift you give!

“I give devise and bequeath to the Australian Rotary Health (ARH), PO Box 6161 Norwest NSW 2153, or its successors, free of all duties, succession or otherwise State or Federal for the purpose of research into health related problems.

The sum of $_____ (insert cash sum)
The property at _____ (insert address)
My _____ (insert description of item/s)
(insert _____%) of my residual estate.

And I declare the official receipt of Australian Rotary Health shall be a full and sufficient discharge to my trustee for this bequest.”

Australian Rotary Health also seeks out an opportunity to present a Benefactor lapel pin in recognition of a bequest. You may keep this in mind as recognition of your gift and your desire to future proof the work of Australian Rotary Health!

As a supporter, I invite your consideration in becoming a Benefactor of Australian Rotary Health. Becoming a Benefactor will enable individuals and families to leave a permanent mark on the Australian medical research history. Funds from Wills and Bequests will finance research into mental health or any health program of your choice with the opportunity of making a lasting legacy by way of research.

By supporting Australian Rotary Health in your Will it is the beginning, the starting point of hope, in efforts to diagnose, treat or cure the diseases of mankind. Today’s research is tomorrow’s cure.

In becoming a Benefactor of Australian Rotary Health, you will make a lasting difference to the lives of countless Australians and most importantly, you will gain the assurance that your support will help Australians for many generations to come.

If I can be of further assistance please contact me on 02 8837 1900.
